

Nález brakteátu Přemysla II. Otakara při archeologickém výzkumu ve Zdechovicích (okr. Pardubice)

V o j t ě c h B R Á D L E

P a v e l H O R N I K

 69, 2014, s. 3–6

oo

A bracteate struck under Ottokar II of Bohemia found during archaeological excavations in Zdechovice (Pardubice district)

On May 3, 2013, a middle-size bracteate (Cach no. 820) struck under Ottokar II of Bohemia (1253–1278) was found in cemetery during archaeological excavations in Zdechovice (Pardubice district). The coin was discovered in one of the graves as an obolus mortuorum, originally in the right hand of the buried person. It confirms the fact that custom of placing coins for the dead people to graves still survived in the 13th century. The specimen from Zdechovice enriches a very limited group of such finds.

 bracteate; coin find; obolus mortuorum; Ottokar II of Bohemia (1253–1278); Zdechovice (Pardubice district) [CZ].

oo

 brakteát; nález mince; obol mrtvých; Přemysl II. Otakar (1253–1278); Zdechovice (okr. Pardubice).