Question marks raised by the counting grossus struck under Ferdinand III in 1649

The detailed analysis of problems connected with classification and existence of the Kuttenberg counting grossus struck under Ferdinand III in 1649 is presented. The author brought many arguments putting in question existence of the grossus produced in 1649 in the relevant literature. He summarized that the coin had to be struck in 1640. Parallelly, he pointed at many other questions to be answered by the Czech numismatics in the case of the Bohemian counting coins in the future.
